ABOUT ME

I am a person interested in computer science and committed to learning and self-improving when it comes to both problem-solving and development. My technical skills have been developed individually, including HTML, CSS, JavaScript, TailwindCSS, and React.js. Although my skills are primarily in frontend development, I have also acquired some basic skills over time in C#, C++, and databases.

COMMUNICATION AND INTERPERSONAL SKILLS

Active listening

I consider myself an active listener that can pay attention to people that have a keen interest in the conversation that is ongoing and I am even trying to engage into the conversation if the topic and interlocutor permits me to do so, normally asking questions, giving answers or offering personal points of view.

Clarity in written communication

I consider that I am a really sharp person in terms of written communication, often saying exactly what I want the interlocutor to understand. This is one of my strong abilities, as I am very often communicating with people via e-mail or other messenger apps, so I am expressing my intentions and expectations as clear as possible.

Networking

Building and maintaining relationships both in my personal life and business life are another 2 of my strong abilities. I am open to meeting new people and openly discuss topics and build strong relationships that last. I like to believe that I am an enjoyable company but that is not upon me to decide.

HOBBIES AND INTERESTS

Cybersecurity

In parallel, I have developed a small hobby, namely Cybersecurity. I have trained my skills individually online on a platform called TryHackMe, from which I gained about 90% of my knowledge. After my studies, I reached the top 6% of users, with the platform having approximately 2 million active users. My rating has declined over time due to a lack of study time, but I propose to restart this hobby.

Physical training

Maintaining somewhat of a healthy lifestyle has recently become a priority for me so as a hobby I started going to the gym to add a little bit of diversion to my life. I am actively trying to gain weight and I am planning on taking this hobby seriously as much as I can.
